SELECTION CONSIDERATIONS

Enterprising Potential (E.P.)

In leadership environments, his/her strength on the E.P. Scale would indicate very strong potential for demonstrating personal initiative and proactivity. He/She should have a natural inclination towards being an effective self-manager. Given coaching to enhance planning and time management skills, he/she should be able to make a routine of the daily effort required to meet competing priorities and drive organizational initiatives.

Achievement Potential (A.P.)

There is a basic strength shown on the A.P. Scale that has real meaning and utility primarily when it is found in a strong self-manager. To make him/her effective in both short- and long-term goals you will have to find his/her particular motivational 'hot buttons' and use these to revive his/her energy and ambition should they start to slip.

Independence Potential (I.P.)

It appears that the I.P. Scale has its greatest usefulness in selection in distinguishing between the Above Average and the Superior potential individuals. With this extremely high level result on the I.P. Scale, this person will inevitably rebel against any tightly controlled work situation and should be comfortable in a leadership role. If you can give him/her lots of freedom of action once he/she demonstrates that he/she has earned it through performance, then he/she might stay with you. Control him/her too much or for too long and he/she will leave.

People Orientation (P.O.)

This is an acceptable result on the P.O. Scale. Generally a result like this has no bearing, either positive or negative, on selection recommendations.

Investigative Orientation (INV.)

This is a very strong result on the INV. Scale. He/She should be able to learn any new information or technical knowledge quickly and will consider intellectual demands a real plus in work.

Comfort with Conflict (CWC)

Test tends to be quite comfortable in situations where there is potential for conflict. He/She may even occasionally create conflict if he/she feels that it will further his/her own goals. He/She could be relatively effective in situations where conflict is a common occurrence or there is ongoing tension that requires his/her intervention.

Self-Directed (SD)

This result shows a better-than-average sense of self-confidence, and a belief that he/she is generally in control of much of his/her own life.

Lifestyle Management (LM)

This result reflects a tremendously strong sense of physical and psychological well-being, found in people who are physically fit and emotionally at peace.

Uncertainty Coefficient (UC)

Test has an acceptable score on the UC scale indicating that he/she is not answering in a socially desirable manner. His/Her answers on the attitude scales tend to be reliable.

EMOTIONAL QUOTIENT

The ability to understand and apply emotional information about ourselves and others effectively.

SELF AWARENESS I: MOOD LABELING
Labels feelings and emotions as they are happening		Does not label feelings and emotions as they are happening
			100

A measure of a person's ability to accurately label personal feelings and emotions.

SELF AWARENESS II: MOOD MONITORING
High monitoring		Optimal monitoring	Low monitoring
100

A measure of the amount of energy a person puts forth in monitoring his/her own feelings and emotions.

SELF CONTROL
Demonstrates good self control		Low control over impulses and negative emotions
100

A measure of a person's restraint as it relates to one's control over his/her impulses, emotions, and/or desires.

MANAGING EMOTIONAL INFLUENCES
Perseveres		Focus can change
100

A measure of a person's ability to manage emotional influences that would prevent him/her from taking those actions that he/she believes are necessary in dealing effectively with everyday situations and/or meeting personal goals.

EMPATHY
Recognizes emotions in others		Low awareness of emotions of others
100

A measure of a person's ability to understand the feelings and emotions of others.

SOCIAL JUDGMENT
Uses knowledge of the emotions of others in decision-making		Does not factor in the emotions of others in decision-making
100

A measure of a person's ability to make appropriate decisions in social situations based on the emotional states of others.

OVERALL
Understands & uses emotional information		Relies on non-emotional information 100

An overall measure of how well a person understands emotional information and uses it effectively.

DEVELOPMENTAL SUGGESTIONS

Based on the Enterprising Potential (E.P.) Results

For a person showing such exceptionally strong self-management potential, the approach should be to build on those potential strengths by offering coaching to ensure the individual's existing self-managing behaviors are aligned with corporate strategy.

Based on the Achievement Potential (A.P.) Results

He/She has the energy and ambition to succeed, and will profit from coaching in relationship management techniques that help him/her apply his/her energy and ambition effectively. He/She will monitor his/her effectiveness from both a recognition and results perspective. Therefore, his/her coach can help him/her reinforce both results and activities. This will help him/her feel successful every day. As a persistent/persuasive person, he/she will learn best from a coach who has a style or approach that is well-matched to his/her own.

Based on the Independence Potential (I.P.) Results

He/She will value coaching that seeks to obtain his/her commitment rather than compliance to the existing business systems. Associates must have the flexibility to feel comfortable with a strong-minded, independent leader. A well-focused and intensive learning experience that continues until he/she achieves a specific performance standard is recommended.

Based on the People Orientation (P.O.) Results

He/She will find satisfaction and productivity enhanced by working with a coach and colleagues who are similarly people oriented.

Based on the Investigative Orientation (INV.) Results

He/She should present little or no problem in technical learning.

Based on the Comfort with Conflict (CWC) Results

He/She can be effective in tense situations if he/she is coached to listen and address the concerns of others. Test may benefit from conflict resolution training.

MATCHING CONSIDERATIONS

Based on the Enterprising Potential (E.P.) Results

MENTORING by a person who is flexible in his/her demands and who prefers others to be self-sufficient self-managers. Associates should be exceptionally strong natural self-managers.

Based on the Achievement Potential (A.P.) Results

MENTORING by a coach who enjoys giving recognition and feedback, and whose applied business philosophy strongly rewards others. Match with associates who believe that seeking challenge while providing outstanding service is the pathway to success.

Based on the Independence Potential (I.P.) Results

MENTORING by a person who, as an exceptionally independent person him/herself, has successfully managed a group of team members. Match with associates who are totally self-sustaining and extremely independent.

Based on the People Orientation (P.O.) Results

MENTORING by someone who is successful, and who finds a great deal of satisfaction in the opportunities to meet and work with new people. Match with associates who will like and use their contact opportunities to enjoy GETTING THE JOB DONE!

Based on the Investigative Orientation (INV.) Results

MENTORING by a coach who gets part of his or her satisfactions from learning the technical side of the business and using it. Match with associates who are eager to tackle any and all technical/learning challenges and opportunities.

Trust is an essential interpersonal construct that has the ability to influence the quality and effectiveness of a variety of business relationships. The Trust POP™ provides a robust and comprehensive assessment of an individual's level of trustworthiness by assessing common attitudes, perceptions and behaviors known to facilitate trust-based relationships. As such, the Trust POP™ is intended to act as a diagnostic tool, highlighting an individual's strengths and growth opportunities in the area of trust and should be used to guide future coaching / developmental strategies.

John C. Marshall, PhD

Consistency

Overview

Test would be described as an extremely predictable and reliable individual. As such, Test likely follows a fairly regular routine and reacts to various situations with consistent emotional and behavioral responses. This predictability and consistency makes it easy for others to assess how Test will respond. As such, when having to make a decision about whether or not Test will do what he/she says he/she will do, his/her previous predictable nature will likely expedite and facilitate this evaluative process.

Developmental Suggestions

1. Help Test understand how to leverage this strength. By being cognizant of his/her level of predictability, he/she can use it to his/her advantage moving forward.
2. Have Test list attributes that he/she feels are facilitators of distrust. Go through them with Test and highlight those that relate to consistency / predictability.
3. Get Test to list all of the things he/she consistently does when interacting with associates and staff. Discuss these in relation to trust and brainstorm additional ways he/she could strive to build trust-based relationships with these people.

Notes

Commitment

Overview

Test appears to make and meet most of his/her commitments to other people. As such, others likely perceive Test to be reliable, and a person of his/her word. This type of consistent reliability is essential for establishing sound trust-based relationships. In business, keeping commitments to colleagues and staff is a great way of strengthening the professional relationship.

Developmental Suggestions

1. Discuss with Test what it means to make and keep a commitment. Help understand what doing so says about his/her character, as well as the social and interpersonal impact that keeping commitments can have on other people. Being aware of this will help leverage this strength moving forward.
2. Having Test coach a colleague who is having trouble making and keeping commitments may be beneficial to both parties.

Notes

Transparency

Overview

Test possesses a moderate degree of transparency in his/her daily interactions with others. As such, he/she is willing to open up in certain circumstances and provide candid and direct responses, while in other situations he/she is likely to respond in more ambiguous or general terms. When dealing with colleagues and staff, Test is likely to tell them everything they need to know, but he/she might leave out certain details that could be potentially damaging to the relationship (e.g., I made a mistake).

Developmental Suggestions

1. Discuss with Test situations where he/she is deceptive when interacting with others. Discuss what factors facilitate the need to become less transparent. This insight will hopefully allow Test to become more aware of this tendency, and ultimately address it in the future.
2. Have Test run through his/her normal delivery of a new company initiative or goal. Listen for ambiguous, general, and/or potentially deceptive terminology. Work with him/her on refining these aspects in order to ensure that the most direct and transparent message is being delivered.
3. Help Test develop strategies/techniques for delivering difficult information. In most cases, the delivery of information is more important than the actual content.

Notes

Managing Self Perceptions

Overview

Test's responses indicate that he/she may be preoccupied with how other people perceive him/her, and as such may try to manage these perceptions in social situations. He/She has a strong desire to be liked and accepted by others, and reports changing his/her demeanor and character on a situation-by-situation basis. This type of environmentally-driven personality can impede the development of trust, as it can delay other peoples' ability to get an accurate read on who you really are.

Developmental Suggestions

1. Have a candid discussion with Test about the pros and cons of managing self perceptions. Provide for him/her the "outside looking in" perspective of this approach.
2. Discuss strategies that he/she can employ that will help him/her achieve his/her desired outcome, while still being true to who he/she is.
3. Have Test run through his/her usual process for delivering feedback to colleagues, or discussing progress towards organizational goals. Highlight areas that may be perceived as contrived or socially desirable.

Notes

Potential to Trust

Overview

Test's responses to these items indicate that he/she does not fully trust someone until he/she has gotten to know them. He/She appears willing to give strangers the benefit of the doubt in some instances, but is unable to fully trust others until a deeper relationship has been formed. Overall, the starting point of every trust-based relationship is each party's willingness to trust. As such, helping Test develop a more trusting nature may allow him/her to develop trust-based relationships with others more quickly.

Developmental Suggestions

1. Discuss with Test where his/her distrust of others comes from. Attempt to discern whether this generalized pessimistic attitude is warranted.
2. Put Test in situations where he/she has to trust and rely on others. Gradually increase the importance and/or costs associated with this activity.
3. The key with distrust is that it is often the result of past experiences. The only way to change this is by exposing Test to new experiences. Provide him/her with examples and point out situations that illustrate that people for the most part are good and honest.

Notes

People's Perception of Your Trustworthiness

Overview

Test's responses indicate that people in his/her environment interact with him/her in a way that suggests a high level of trustworthiness. Test's colleagues and friends routinely share personal information with him/her and seek his/her advice when facing difficult situations. He/She reports avoiding gossip situations and places a great deal of importance on keeping other peoples' private information to him/herself.

Developmental Suggestions

1. Ask Test what qualities he/she possesses that make others trust him/her. Understanding these strengths will help him/her leverage them moving forward.
2. Have Test coach others who may be having difficulty in this area. The task of coaching, and articulating the value of trustworthiness will help make him/her more cognizant of this trait.

Personal Strengths/Career Needs

In Terms of Enterprising vs. Support Role Possibilities

You can be described as extremely competitive, enterprising, assertive, aggressive, tough-minded, determined and goal-oriented. You may display new and creative ways to reach your personal and work objectives. You typically evaluate your work, and you can sometimes be critical of your own performance. Given a goal, objective or requirement, you can develop your own plan, manage your time and focus your effort on a daily basis to reach your goals. Being a self-manager should come very naturally to you, and these skills should be refined through formal training and/or on-the-job experience.

In Terms of Your Style & Strength of Various Motivations

You can be described as being motivated both by a genuine concern for the well-being of others and by the opportunity to achieve an excellent standard of income for yourself through applying your talents and effort to achieving very demanding goals. To achieve both your people-oriented goals and your personal goals, you may become somewhat hard-driving, eager, active and, if delayed, occasionally impatient. There is a balance in your motivational pattern between an orientation toward people or service considerations and toward bettering your own life. This means that you will want to assess each step in your career path in terms of its social merit, as well as its payoff to you. If either element is seriously limited in a job, you may have difficulty in committing yourself completely to it.

In Terms of Your Independence vs. Your Need to Be in the Team

You can be described as extremely strong-minded, stubborn, demanding, firm, independent and resolute. You seek responsibility and dislike constant supervision. Your result indicates that you are an individual interested in developing your own skills, and innovative in developing your own procedures or methods of approaching business, perhaps even to the extent of conflicting with existing company procedures. In a team situation, you would be most likely to move as quickly as possible into a team leadership role, if you decided to participate in the team at all.

In Terms of Your Orientation Toward the 'People' Side of Business

You can be described as quite sociable, enthusiastic, cheerful, genial and outgoing. You enjoy personal relationships and interactions, and would make a good company representative in terms of customer satisfaction, and personal and company public image. You value initial and ongoing interpersonal relationships.

In Terms of Your Orientation Toward Technical & Practical Concerns

You are extremely logical, reflective, analytical, factual and very practical. You enjoy things that challenge your capacity to learn. For the sake of interest as well as necessity, you will become an expert in things that intrigue and challenge you. You like to be creative and conceptual. You enjoy solving intellectual challenges by thoroughly investigating the facts and data associated with a particular problem. Your introspective and self-controlled behavior may be interpreted sometimes by others as being aloof and preoccupied.

What To Seek/What To Avoid In Jobs

What Should You Look for In a Job/Career that Matches You Best?

- ✓ Look for opportunities to create your own work structure and to develop your self-management skills through training in time management and activity planning. The opportunity to put solid effort into the job each day is a real plus for you, as you know that effort invested consistently will produce the results you seek in both productivity and recognition.
- ✓ Look for career opportunities that combine work of genuine social value with an equally genuine opportunity to take on demanding and challenging tasks for which you will receive recognition and good financial compensation.
- ✓ Look for employment that provides you with a lot of freedom to be creative in developing your own ways to do business. You should seek a supervisor that likes staff members who think for themselves and work independently.
- ✓ You should look for employment that provides you with 'people' contact or some public relations opportunities. You derive satisfaction from interaction with other people in both personal and work environments.
- ✓ Look for employment that offers intellectual challenges and an opportunity to learn and grow in your field of endeavor. You would be happy in a job that is analytical, technical, involves discovery learning and is detail-oriented.

What Should You Avoid in Jobs/Careers that Don't Match You?

- ✗ Avoid tightly and rigidly structured work situations. If there is no room to put your personal touch to work in organizing and managing yourself, the job may become too constricting for you. Try to avoid jobs that may limit your self-management skills development. You have a strong need to be a self-manager, and that affects your personal productivity and your sense of satisfaction with any job.
- ✗ Avoid jobs that you feel do not have any real human merit in them. Also avoid positions in which everyone is treated alike, regardless of their effort and performance. You can use your talents best where both the 'people' element and the challenge element are present.
- ✗ Avoid work circumstances in which you would be expected to follow rigorous rules and be under close and continuing supervision for an extended period. However, you should be careful not to give people the impression that there is little anyone can teach you.
- ✗ You should avoid employment in jobs that have only limited feedback from others. You should also not be in situations that isolate you from others.
- ✗ You should avoid jobs that are simplistic, boring and intellectually undemanding. An environment that does not offer growth and learning opportunities would not appeal to you and would limit your likelihood of outstanding performance.
